

Disclose as little as possible about yourself.

1

Be aware, and do not accept, that you are being observed and that your data is being collected.

2

Do not believe everything you see or read online and keep yourself informed utilizing alternative sources.

3

4 Do not condone bullying or hateful behavior.

5

Respect the dignity of others and remember, even in the world wide web rules are applicable.

6

Do not trust everyone with whom you only have contact online.

Protect yourself and others from extreme content.

7

Do not value your own worth by likes and posts.

8

Do not judge yourself and your body by numbers and statistics.

9

Once in a while turn off your digital devices and treat yourself to a timeout.

10

10 Golden Rules of Digital Ethics

How can we proficiently live together in the web?

Hello together,

We live in a digitized world in which we have more freedom but also more responsibility. The way we behave and how we deal with conflicts is a reflection of our ethical attitude.

It is time to agree on how a good and successful life in a digital society should look like.

The 10 Golden Rules of Digital Ethics can be understood as guidelines. These 10 Golden Rules should help to appreciate the dignity of everyone, his/her self-determination as well as his/her freedom of action.

Let us respect them.

Supported by:

Authors: Bachelorstudents at the Stuttgart Media University, Germany: Fabienne Engel & Julia Fink, as well as research assistants of the Institute for Digital Ethics: Nadine Hammele & Clarissa Henning under the guidance of Prof. Dr. Petra Grimm, Director of the Institute for Digital Ethics, in cooperation with JUUUPORT – a consulting platform by and for teenagers dealing with issues in the web; Layout: Sophie Hartmann